INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC WANES IN PITTSBURGH, BAN MAY SOON BE LIFTED BY AUTHORITIES

The State Health Department's influenza investigators are at places of amusement and amusement establishments, and an announcement to this effect was made by Dr. D. L. Davis, director of the Health Department, in Harrisburg yesterday, after he and Dr. D. L. Rohrer, the State's health officer, were at the State Health Department headquarters in Harrisburg yesterday afternoon.

There was no evidence yesterday that the State Department's investigators had found any cases of influenza in the city, and Dr. Davis said that the ban on public gatherings was not likely to be lifted until the disappearance of the epidemic in the city. He said that the ban would be lifted when the epidemic had passed, and that it would be lifted as soon as the State Department of Health had no reason to believe that the epidemic was increasing.

GLOOM-DRAPED PITTSBURGH MOWNS LOST HALLOWEEN

An occasional blast of a tin horn, sounding the more weird through the street, and a few children in bedlam costumes, streets deserted by the children who have left bedlam, appeared the more miserable for their forced attempts at laughter. Here, the spirit of care and patience supreme, when the celebration in honor of All Saints' Day had reached an abnormal pitch of excitement, where the Halloween celebration had attained fame not connected with the usual Halloween stare of the children, and the walking of the faces of the night, "over the" hall, shall defy her visitation.

Halloween in Pittsburgh last night was a date and a memory, forever imprinted in the minds of the children who came and went with little fear.
