Hasler Warns Against Letting Up of Efforts to Protect People's Health

A distinct improvement in the influenza situation appeared on the reports of the Board of Health yesterday. At a meeting in the afternoon, new cases had been reported for the first time since the last Board meeting. The number of new cases was 12, while the total number of deaths reported for yesterday was 12, with 1075 deaths for the month. The death toll for the week was 12,000. Although the number of deaths is lower, the total number of cases reported since the epidemic started is still higher than the previous year.

WORK TO RESUME

Rogers yesterday said in his message: "I have had a number of cases for the day in my own practice, and that at least I have had a number of cases at the general hospital. The central emergency hospital at the General Hospital has been working overtime to handle the increasing number of cases."

Dr. Hasler added: "The number of cases is not entirely diminished in South, but that is due to the fact that the initial case in the city was at first no larger than a number in the hospital."

Consistent with the above report, the Board of Health has issued its weekly report. For the week ended Wednesday, the number of cases reported was 12,000, with 1075 deaths. The death toll for the month was 12,000. Although the number of cases is lower, the total number of cases reported since the epidemic started is still higher than the previous year.
