Epidemic Reaches Height Outside Of San Francisco

Conditions regarding the Spanish influenza epidemic throughout the State were a trifle more favorable than the reports in San Francisco, according to Dr. George E. Bright, chief of the State Board of Health. He said last night:

In the districts outside of San Francisco there are evident indications that the epidemic has reached its height. It is imperative now that the citizens co-operate to the fullest extent with the regulations prescribed by their local Boards of Health so that the disease may be entirely eliminated.

Streets should and must be kept well flushed. It is advisable to do this work late at night. Likewise the gauze masks should be worn everywhere by everybody. These masks have proven the greatest aid in combating the spread of the epidemic in the Eastern cities and are a safe precaution.

The influenza first made its appearance in California down near Los Angeles and from figures that came in yesterday, it appears that there has been a marked decrease in new cases. A report I have just received indicates a falling off of 500 cases for the past 24 hours.

In the schools public health boards believed it was compatible with local conditions, the idea of permitting the children to attend school has proven a wise step. The schools have been carefully watched and have been kept in well-ventilated rooms. This has been far better than allowing the children to run about the streets.

36 GIRLS AID IN GRIPPE FIGHT

San Francisco. Chapter of the Red Cross yesterday made further call for physicians, trained nurses, practical housekeeping women and automobiles to meet the urgent demand in the influenza epidemic.

Sixty-six girls comprising the Red Cross Ambulance and Automobile Corps, went into service to handle cases and to supply rapid transport of patients, nurses and medical supplies.

Mrs. Philip Kamm, commander of the group, arranged for the ambulances to be set aside during the critical period.

Mrs. Cameron, former superintendent of Lake hospital, arrived yesterday from Sacramento to take charge of the nurses to hospital and Mrs. Richard Jose in charge. It will be open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.

An appeal for assistance in families where children require attention, parents being ill in houses calling for trained nurses to replenish the ranks of the gauze masks, and Mrs. Richard Jose in charge. It will be open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. to take care of the sick.

WARD OFF INFLUENZA BY WEARING MASKS ON STREET

Board of Health asks public co-operation in its fight against epidemic.

BY FAY KING

The flu mask is no longer a joke.

The Board of Health wants EVERY PERSON in San Francisco to wear a GAUZE MASK and it’s up to YOU to get one at Red Cross Headquarters, 20 Montgomery Street, and wear it.

It’s up to YOU to send for enough masks so that every employee in your place of business has a mask.

We’ve kidded about the “Flu Fence” and the “Gas Mask,” but the influenza epidemic has reached the stage where not only for your own sake, but for EVERYBODY’s, you have to wear a mask and thereby help to check the spread.

And you must wear it on the street!

Oh, girls, you needn’t pucker up your nose and riggle, you’ve taken on the noble skirt, barber-pole stockings, knee-length dress and backless gown without a blush— you needn’t shy at the Flu Mask.

If Lady Duff Gordon had designed it, and Mrs. Vernon Castle had introduced it, you’d all be running around in them, but just because, for once, a “fad” has come in that HAS A REASON FOR BEING, you hesitate about appearing in public with it on.

MEN 3 FEET TALL DRAFTED

Take it from me, it’s just as becoming as a thousand other freak fashions, we have fallen for, and now it’s up to us to do what the Board of Health requests.

If you are a REAL SAN FRANCISCO—PROVE IT, by wearing a mask.

We should ridicule those who don’t wear them, because it’s a matter of life and death.

Every one in “The Examiner” office has his “flu fence” on.

Every one in “The Examiner” office has his “flu fence” on.

And you should be wearing a mask.

It’s hard to tell the office boy from the boss, and we feel like a Klue Klux Klan of Nite Writers on a morning paper, but all kidding aside you’re not doing your bit in the war on influenza unless you go over the “top” with a Flu Mask!

Sure, I’m wearing one—ON THE STREET!

A tiny bit of black thread marks the outside of the mask, and it must never be reversed. After taking your mask off and putting it in your pocket, it must be scalped or boiled five minutes before putting it on again.

Everybody—On with the Mask!
