Law in Force Until Passing of Influenza

Supervisors Meet in Extraordinary Session on Total of Cases Mounts Over 10,000 Mark

Police Ordered to Intercept All Persons Found Without Gauze Protection on Their Faces

Today it is unlawful for any person to appear in any public place in San Francisco without a mask over their noses and mouths.

Yesterday, while the total number of infected cases was mounting, grave incidents occurred in several residential quarters. Report of a death was received in one instance, and a general alarm resulted in the moving of many families. The news went on to say:

"Every possible precaution is being taken to avert a repetition of yesterday's conditions. The mayor of the city has made an appeal to everyone to remain at their homes, and not to allow themselves to be carried away by a panic.

"The police, under the orders of the mayor, are making every effort to prevent the spread of the disease. They are going from house to house, warning people to stay indoors and to keep their windows closed."

Let's All Be Sensible and Fearless

No peace until there is victory for the liberty of the world.

Great news from Washington, splendid news from France, good news from England.

Good news! good news! heartening news! We are getting hold of the influenza epidemic, instead of letting it get hold of us.

The ambulance fund of the Downtown Association is growing fast. Last night the association's headquarters in the Mechanics' Liberty building yielded $250, and gave $100 to the fund, and some of the members of the association are giving $25 each.

There is a new ambulance ready on the road to the Red Cross, right now.

That is cheering to the heart, isn't it? For these ambulances are needed. They are needed so cruelly as the Red Cross is doing its best to meet the situation.

News of good deeds, nobly, generously, wisely, and quickly, is coming in by every account.

Mrs. John Cassady has turned her home into a hospital. There are twenty patients there. She has an efficient housekeeper who is running a well-ordered home.

"Mrs. Cassady is doing a wonderful piece of work,

One nurse can care for twenty patients when they are sick, and she can take care of one only if she has ten or fifteen in her home."

It is needed, cruelly.

"People are dying in various parts of the city. They are dying of pneumonia, and there are no facilities for taking care of them."

The Red Cross building is still being used as a hospital. The Telegraph will keep you posted on all the latest news.

"If you can't do any of these things—-if you can't help, then, carry your mask and keep your nose covered."

Remember that half of this business is right after all. There is great danger if you take care of yourself and your children as you should.

Common sense is what is needed. Good riots, in the living room, the bathroom, the kitchen. Wash your hands, clean your face, chop your meat until it is done, rub your hands, wash your face, and remember always to wash your hands with soap and warm water."
