

New Uses of "Flu" Masks

A face bandage that hides your kisser and is a handy thing to catch the germs, not only your own special brand, but whatever mavericks may be wandering at large. It is also a handy thing to spit your tobacco juice into, even if it does make your chin and nose a little bit mussy. It may also be used as a chewing gum holder by those addicted to the habit, tho we consider this latter practise to be extremely reprehensible.

—Creede Candle.
