

MEASURES FOR THOSE WHO WOULD NOT TAKE SPANISH INFLUENZA

Twelve cents for those who would guard against Spanish influenza were received yesterday and posted at the suffrage service (in Old City Hall). The preventive measures were compiled by Brig. Gen. Charles Richard of the Medical Corps, acting surgeon general of the United States Army. They are:

Avoid needless crowding—Influenza is a crowd disease.

Smother your coughs and sneezes—others do not want the germs you throw away.

Your nose, not your mouth, was made to breathe through—get the habit.

Try to keep cool when you walk and warm when you ride and sleep.

Remember the three Cs—clean mouth, clean skin, clean clothes.

Open the windows—always at home at night; at the office when practicable.

Food will win the war if you give it a chance—help by choosing and chewing the food well.

Your fate may be in your own hands—wash you hands before eating.

Don't let the waste products of digestion accumulate. Drink a glass or two of water 'on eating' up.

Don't use a napkin, towel, spoon, fork, glass or cup which has been used by another person and not washed.

Avoid tight clothing, tight shoes, tight gloves. Seek to make nature your ally, not your prisoner.

When the air is pure breathe all of it you can—breathe deeply.

TRAINING CORPS PLACED UNDER QUARANTINE

Military Authorities at Tech and Pitt Take Measures to Combat Influenza.

40 MEN IN HOSPITAL

As a precaution against the spread of Spanish influenza among members of the Students' Army Training Corps at the University of Pittsburgh and the Carnegie Institute of Technology, the military authorities in charge of the student-soldiers have established quarantine zones about those institutions in the Oakland district, except for the Margaret Morrison Carnegie School, which is in an isolated section. Maj. W. E. Day, a Pittsburgh physician, in the United States Army Medical Corps, reached here Thursday night from Camp Lee, Va., to take charge of the quarantine.

At the University of Pittsburgh the zone was established at 6 o'clock last night by Lieut. Col. Silas A. Wolf, and the one at Tech was put into effect late Thursday night by Col. John C. W. Brooks. Since the induction of students last Tuesday into the training corps a number have been stricken with the disease. Yesterday afternoon the victims were removed from barracks to the Elizabeth Steel Morrison Hospital, the second floor having been commandeered by Maj. Day. While the military authorities are reticent regarding the number of sick men, it was reported that about 40 are confined in the hospital.

Extent of Quarantine.

The quarantine around the University of Pittsburgh extends from the inside curb of the following streets: Corner Fifth avenue and Bigelow boulevard to the steps in the rear of State Hall; thence to the corner of Breckenridge and Allequippa streets; down Breckenridge street to the street in the rear of the Mass Hall; along the guard line to Laboratory B; to the cemetery fence, along the cemetery fence in the rear of the track house to Allequippa street, to the steps leading down to Boquet street, thence to Fifth avenue and along Fifth avenue to Bigelow boulevard.

The boundary at the Carnegie Institute of Technology extends around all the buildings and Flag Staff Hill, Schenley Park. During the day guards were stationed only at paths leading to the Tech school buildings, but late in the afternoon they were placed along the entire quarantine zone boundary. The only persons allowed to enter or depart from the Tech zone were instructors and other employees of the institution, who were provided with passes by the military authorities. The same strict quarantine prevailed last night at Pitt after the guards were placed.

Change in Class Meetings.

Some of the non-military classes at Pitt will be held in downtown buildings, and at Tech it was said that students not taking military courses will be conducted through the quarantine boundaries to school rooms by instructors.

The evening school class of economics, which was to have met last night in Thaw Hall, University of Pittsburgh, was postponed. It was stated that the class will meet regularly, beginning next Monday night, in the Law School Building, Ross and Diamond street. Classes in the law school will meet in the same building and the school of pharmacy will continue its classes in the building at Bluff and Pride streets.

The Pitt quarantine zone includes Soldiers' Memorial Hall, Eighteenth Regiment Armory and Central Turnverein, which are used as barracks for the Pitt R. A. T. C.; Duquesne Garden and Masonic Hall, used by the Tech R. A. T. C. for barracks, are also under quarantine.

There were prompt responses from Pittsburgh business houses to the emergency request for hospital supplies in behalf of the Magee Hospital. George Newell Moran, executive secretary of the War Camp Community Service, said that sick-room garments, sanitary equipment and other articles needed were received from a number of Pittsburgh business houses.

Soon after the quarantine was declared at the University of Pittsburgh the board of trustees started a search for suitable residential property or other buildings in the Oakland district in which classes of women students could be held.
