

Influenza Strikes Its Lowest Figure

Deaths as Well as New Cases
Show Sharp Decline.

The smallest of new influenza and pneumonia cases and the lowest number of deaths resulting from the disease and its complications during any 18-hour period since the influenza became epidemic several months ago, was reported by the health department this morning.

During the period ending at 10 o'clock this morning, but 21 new cases of influenza were reported, making a total of 23,100 since the disease became epidemic. New pneumonia cases for the same number of hours was five, making a total of 232.

Deaths following the influenza and its complications totaled 11. Three persons died from pneumonia and eight from influenza-pneumonia.