

9 RELIEF STATIONS OF RED CROSS KEPT BUSY

Each of the nine district relief stations established by the Red Cross was busy yesterday responding to calls from homes in need of nursing service or housekeepers. These requests were immediately transmitted to 30 Montgomery street, where five additional telephones have been installed, and as promptly as possible the desired aid was given.

Mrs. James Kerrigan, captain of the Richmond district, found it expedient to change her telephone number to Pacific 1653, and on the Telegraph Hill district Miss Marguerite Johnston took the place made vacant by the illness of Miss Alice Griffith. The large number of calls for medical aid in this district resulted in the adding of that service to the work of providing home comforts for influenza sufferers.
