

SALVAGE SHOP IS DEVOTED TO MASKS

Demand Is Taxing Resources of Red Cross Women; Work
10 to 18 Hours a Day.

THE demand for "flu" masks is taxing the resources of the surgical dressing department of the Red Cross to its utmost capacity. The women working at headquarters have forgotten all about eight-hour laws and are working anywhere from ten to eighteen hours a day. Every night finds the women cutting, folding and stitching at full speed.

The salvage shop on Thirteenth street has closed its doors to all business save that of producing masks. A large corps of women is working diligently and more are needed.

An additional workroom has been opened in the basement of the Oakland High School building, access to which may be had from the entrance on Twelfth street nearest Grove.

Mrs. Robert Glenn, who has been in charge of the surgical dressing department of Red Cross for eighteen months, is conducting the work and from early morning until headquarters closes at night she may be found busily engaged superintending the work and directing the women.

Mrs. Glenn has had the faithful cooperation of many women, among whom are Mrs. J. Clarkson Smith, Mrs. Harry East Miller, Mrs. Horatio Bonestell, Mrs. Howard Bray, Mrs. Henry Gracey, Mrs. Bernard Ransom, Mrs. Harry Knowles, Mrs. A. G. Nason and Mrs. Clarence Crowell.
